ADRIAN ATTWOOD Bsc(Hons)PGDipl(Cons) Project Director

After completing a BSc (Hons) in Building Technology and Management, Adrian entered the building conservation and restoration industry as a Trainee Surveyor in 1987, firstly with a large Management Contractor and then with a specialist masonry company.

In 1991 he joined David Ball Restoration Limited as Operations Manager and became Executive Director in 1999 with the responsibility for all aspects of business development for the Company. Adrian has been responsible for project managing some of the Company's largest projects, including 18-19 Kensington Palace Gardens, Bournemouth Railway Station, Hampton Court Palace and Winchester Palace and has been actively involved in many other conservation projects on scheduled monuments and grade listed buildings. Adrian is currently project managing Term Contracts for the care and maintenance of Central London statues and memorials for English Heritage and the Greater London Authority, along with the maintenance also of scheduled monuments at the Old Royal Naval College, Greenwich.

Adrian has completed a post-graduate diploma in Building Conservation at Bournemouth University. He is a member of the Stone Federation's committee on cleaning and surface repair and also a member of ASCHB (Association for Studies in the Conservation of Historic Buildings).
